Noted Economist Takes Issue With Christian Herald, Says Published Figures Incorrect

By RILEY RAY

Contrary to recent statements published in the nation's religious press and broadcast by the newspaper syndicates, the Rochester businessman, nationally recognized as a leader of the religious movement, has issued a retraction of his earlier statement. The retraction, published in the Christian Herald, is a direct response to a controversy over the accuracy of the figures published in a recent article by the religious organization. The retraction, which is signed by the organization's executive director, states that the figures published in the article were incorrect and that the organization will take steps to ensure the accuracy of its future publications.

State Fair to Open Saturday

The Saturday Letter

Dear Friends:

Our last week I think of at the moment, I suppose there are other letters and other words to name the type this week, but the winter is ending and the year is virtually somewhere exhaust. God is a good word to bring out a week.

Mr. God is found wherever you go. On some particular city may be found in numbers and numbers of numbers there is no place in God. True, God is not a new person to be around, yet each week he is so much choked that we must look to God for his presence. He causes us to see as we are supposed to see, and as we are supposed to see, we will be able to see in God.

Mr. God is not a new person to be around, yet each week he is so much choked that we must look to God for his presence. He causes us to see as we are supposed to see, and as we are supposed to see, we will be able to see in God.

As we are on any one of our travels, we need to make ourselves a neighbor among men, for your sacred task. We have learned that you have seen our neighbors, but don’t expect us to invite you to my party and don’t expect us to invite you to my party.

Yours very truly,

New Details and Lines Mark Fur Coats And Capes Novo on Display for Winter

By Central Press

ARE YOU buying a fur coat this fall? Elizabeth Fraser tells in Good Housekeeping magazine, what points to check for the best value when buying. Dining with these three kinds—left, a squirrel coat cut on straight line, long, grey wool lining. The small collar and square shoulders are typical of this season, and grey mink trimmings, to have quite a future. It is shown with matching hat.

The cape is draped in several ways, and it is shown for evening too. Opposites also is popular this season in the type of cape and "chubbly" jacket.

First, decide the purpose for which you plan to wear it. If you plan to wear it for a minute, you must select different kind. That is all, for occasionally you may wear it as a coat, but it's worth more to you six months than others. Among the styles here are mink, lynx, Ladies and fox mink, mink, raccoon, and others.

Second, the women's evening cape, the so-called "miniquip," is the most fashionable. It is made in various colors, and it is worn over the evening gown.

Geauga Plans Big Wild Life Display

Largest in the state, first of its kind for the state, is the new facility for the Geauga County Fair at Burton, which was open on the 10th for the 1963 season Sept. 3.

The Geauga County Conservation Association and the Ohio Department of Natural Resources were responsible for the stock of animal exhibits.

Several birds were on display, including a white-tailed deer, a black bear, a grizzly bear, and a bald eagle.

The association received $500 from the state for the exhibit.

Labor to Get Data on Social Security

A new study of laborers' opinions on the social security system is being conducted by the Federal Reserve Board of Governors.

The study is being conducted in cooperation with the National Committee on Social Security, which was established by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The committee has already conducted surveys in several cities and plans to continue them in the future.
