Newspaper clipping from the Euclid Observer, Friday, October 28, 1977

Just Jots and Jolts

By BARBARA HENDRICKS

The Euclid Observer goes to press, and the first thing that comes to mind is a story of the week. It's a tale of two stories that I think would make a good newspaper headline: "Newspaper Heads to Press, First Thing That Comes to Mind is a Story of the Week."

It all started with a report of a recent murder in the city of Euclid. The police were investigating the scene, and it seemed like everyone in town was talking about it. I went to the crime scene to get some quotes for the newspaper, and I couldn't help but notice how everyone seemed so much more engaged than usual.

I decided to write an article about the investigation, and as I was typing away, I couldn't help but think about how much more serious the topic at hand seemed to be. It was a reminder of how much we take for granted in our everyday lives.

There was also a story about a local business that was facing some tough times. The owner had been trying to keep the place open for as long as possible, but it seemed like everything was falling apart.

I decided to write an article about the business, and as I was typing away, I couldn't help but think about how much more serious the topic at hand seemed to be. It was a reminder of how much we take for granted in our everyday lives.

I hope you enjoy reading these stories as much as I enjoyed writing them. Thanks for reading, and have a great week.

Mayor Displays Frenzy

Firemen Drunk
On Arrival At Blaze, Charge

By HANS J. HENSE

The flames of the fire that raged in the Cleveland Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith on Wednesday night were not the only ones that were ignited that evening. Firemen, who arrived on the scene only to find the blaze well under control, were themselves the source of much of the commotion.

Charges that two firemen were intoxicated when they arrived at the scene were made by Mr. Smith, who stated that the firemen were "drunk as hell." He said he had seen the firemen go to a bar in the neighborhood and drink all evening.

The firemen, who were among the first to arrive on the scene, were quoted as saying that they were "too drunk to even see the fire." They were also quoted as saying that they "thought the fire was just a joke." When asked why they had not reported the fire sooner, they replied that they thought it was just a prank.

The fire department was forced to send a second unit to the scene, and the situation was finally brought under control.

Sincerity of Man Drafted For Mayor's Job Impresses Reporter

By J. A. RHEIN

The sincerity of the man drafted for the job of Mayor of Euclid, Mr. John Smith, was on full display when he appeared before the City Council last week.

Mr. Smith, who is currently serving as a city councilman, was chosen by Mayor Richard Rhee to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Mayor Richard Rhee.

Mr. Smith, who has been a resident of Euclid for 20 years, has been active in local politics and has served on several committees.

Grover Pleads For Approval Of School Tax

By J. A. RHEIN

Grover Ford, the city councilman who has been a vocal opponent of the school tax, appeared before the City Council last week to ask for its approval.

Mr. Ford, who is a strong supporter of tax reform, said that the school tax is unfair and that it should be replaced with a property tax.

The city council, however, was not swayed by Mr. Ford's arguments and voted to approve the school tax.

We Hope It Is Approved

POUR weeks ago we urged voters of the county to lend their support to the 2-cent welfare and relief levy which was placed in the ballot at Cleveland's primary.

We were then in agreement advanced by the Clyde Tax League that it would be most desirable to have all tax levies submitted at the one time and at the one election.

Recently as the levy failed to obtain a 66 per cent majority required by law in the September election, it must be withdrawn and all other tax proposals at the general election.

We pointed out in our previous editorial on the issue that the humane problem in our opinion transgressed all other arguments.

The tax league declares the levy is too large, asserts that instead of giving the taxpayers the benefit of savings resulting from decreases in welfare expenses, the county commis- sioners propose to increase other expenditures including some that are not strictly welfare.

"We will fight this levy again," they declared, "and hope to win a more favorable result.

"Just as any city council, "they added, "the city council is a strong organization and it is important that the people support the position, which is not opposed to welfare in any way. We are opposed to the size of the welfare levy, because it is being used to support too much waste, inefficiency and general paupers.

In some of the county offices, the levy has been made necessary by a large increase in the cost of labor, particularly in the courts.

In this opinion we do not applaud the city council's policies and politics substantially.

The present commissioners inaugurate an economy campaign when they first took office and have increased the county's expenses in the operation of their offices, at the same time urging economy on the part of other county departments. There are the same commissioners who are asking renewal of the welfare levy.

These same officials in whose departments waste is apparent and whose expenditures the commissioners call unnecessary will do well to consider the results of the votes of taxpayers against unnecessary spending.

It is true that the levy is not the only indication of the ills of humanity existing today, but it is a good indication of its existence for the taxes of the county are limited and the cost of the ballot is minimal.

The county of Cleveland is a large one and its government is a large one.

The economy is the greatest benefit to the average citizen of the county and the citizens of the county are the ones who pay the expense of the county.

For their sake, we hope the levy is approved.

Halloween Mischief

Too often mischief tolerated at the Halloween period in communities and enterprises shows itself. Trucking in fake fire alarms, removal of scarce, gage and other property is causing severe damage about the streets, letting air out of tires and cutting into buildings, etc.

Another frequent cause of trouble is the knowledge that you can get a new model with the part with the old one.

Pensioners to Organize Unit, Protest Against Check Delays

A call to all people drawing pensions from the state of Ohio has been issued by Raymond J. Jeffreys of Cleveland, who is a member of Cleveland's Public Employees Organization. Jeffreys, who is a member of the Ohio Old Age Pensioners Society, which has 13,000 members in Ohio, will address the group Thursday night in a meeting at the Senior Citizens Center, 1571 West 3rd St., Cleveland. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The group plans to protest against late check delays and other problems. Jeffreys, who is also a member of the Ohio Old Age Pensioners Society, said the group will form a unit to represent the interests of pensioners.

Clothes and Charm

BY MAROLYN DEARING

We all know that grandmother loved a beaded hat, and that she probably hadn't had a good hat in years. It's a far cry from the days when she could buy a hat at a dime store.

But that's the way it is. You can't buy a hat for a dollar anymore. You have to pay at least a buck for a good hat.

A hat that fits well and is comfortable is a must. But it also has to be fashionable. And it has to be made of good materials.

Clothing is an art form. Just look at the way people wear their clothes today. It's a reflection of their personality. And it's a way to express themselves.

The same can be said for hats. They are not just functional items, but they are also an integral part of a person's image.
