Cleveland Observer

Back in army days, the soldiers awakened breathlessly, more or less, for news. But it wasn’t until after breakfast when the men knew they were coming up and put away that first news began to circulate. Especially from the first hour.

"Tops" suggested that he might well talk of it in before breakfast. He’s a big one for the big things. It was a big one for the big things. The dramatics for the first Saturday in January, it was a success beyond anything.

When the citizens’ party together with other political groups gathered in to raise identity in Cleveland, the result was in Cleveland, the result was a success beyond anything. Citizens’ party, Thompson’s Press Club, and the Byrd party had 15 days every 18 months.

Addenda, by the Editor: We mean to continue this before the Squares. When he introduced his party last week at the victory party ball, he said: ‘Our party will be called the Squares.’

Odd is Odd, But That Helps Him to Success

BY: BLAKE CRIDER, Ph. D.

A PHYSICIAN once was greatly puzzled as to why a small dog had a peculiar habit of standing on his hind legs. It seemed to the doctor that the dog was not well educated. So he asked the owner of the dog what he could do to train the animal to stand on its hind legs. The owner admitted that he had never thought of the possibility of training the dog. The doctor then told him that the dog was not educated, but was simply a natural. The owner was surprised, but the doctor explained that the dog was simply a natural and that he had never learned to stand on his hind legs.

Looking Ahead

At Washington

By David R. Scott

Today the capital today faces the most grueling of all the annual chores: trying to get a million dollars worth of work done. Not only are the appropriations bills not being as well as they could be, but the Senate is also beginning to show signs of the strain.

In connection, however, with the problems of the Senate, it is interesting to note the beginning of the Senate's work on the annual appropriation bills. The Senate has already passed the appropriations bills for the Treasury, Post Office, and Mail Service, and has begun to work on the appropriations bills for the Department of Commerce and the Department of Agriculture.

Widespread dissatisfaction among senators, a result of the Senate's failure to act on many of the important issues of the day, is reflected in the Senate's work on the annual appropriation bills. The Senate has already passed the appropriations bills for the Treasury, Post Office, and Mail Service, and has begun to work on the appropriations bills for the Department of Commerce and the Department of Agriculture.

Hofmann Observes Golden Jubilee

A musical event of historical significance will be presented at Severance Hall, Cleveland, on Thursday evening, Dec. 10. Dr. Hofmann appears as soloist in the direction of André Preston Higgins. Return is celebrating the golden jubilee anniversary of his American debut as a pianist. The recital is sponsored by the Women's City Club of Cincinnati and has been identified with the Cleveland symphony for more than thirty years.

Chapter V

D'ON'T laugh... I don't...}

Henry said there weren't a week in which she wasn't called on by some one who had heard of her success and who wanted her to go on a tour with him. He said she was one of the most charming women he had ever known, and that he had never seen a more beautiful one. He said she was always happy and that she never failed to make a good impression on people. He said she was a great talker and that she was always ready to tell a story.

He said that the story of his adventure, which had interested him greatly, had interested him still more when he had heard of the adventure of a famous military man who had been his friend. He said that the military man had been the first to learn of the adventure and that he had been the first to tell it. He said that the military man had been a great collector and that he had collected a large number of objects of interest.
