"When my children call, I know they’re thinking about me."

If you can’t visit your family members on a regular basis, why not do it by phone? The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has announced a plan to provide telephone service to all Americans, at any location in the United States. The plan includes provisions for rural and remote areas, where telephone service has been difficult to obtain. Under the FCC’s new proposals, every household in the United States will be able to have access to telephone service. The plan also includes provisions for low-income families and those with limited English proficiency. The FCC’s proposals are designed to provide access to basic telephone service to all Americans, regardless of where they live. National City Bank

Switch to National City Bank. We promise you better times.

We asked people what banking services they thought should be improved. Their number one request: extended banking hours.

We said, why not put up with a bank that doesn't have the time for you when better times are around the corner. At every office of National City Bank, isn't it time to make up your mind?
A couple of weeks ago, Euclid News Journal reporter Jerry Freedman told us that he was working on a pretty big story about the Euclid-Lyndhurst Schools. He said it was going to be big news. Well, it is. And it's not going to be a pleasant read for the superintendent of the Euclid-Lyndhurst Schools.

The superintendent of the Euclid-Lyndhurst Schools is a woman named Mary Jane Hartsell. She's been in charge of the schools for about a year now. She's a former teacher and principal and she's been doing a pretty good job so far.

But now, Jerry Freedman has uncovered some pretty shocking information about her. He says that she has been involved in some pretty unethical behavior, including accepting gifts from suppliers and using school funds for personal expenses.

This is serious stuff. It's going to take some time to sort it all out, but it looks like the Euclid-Lyndhurst Schools are in for a rough ride.

As for Mary Jane Hartsell, she's in for a tough time too. She's going to have to answer some tough questions about what she's been up to.

So, that's the big news. But there's more. Jerry Freedman also wrote a little story about some of the things he's been working on recently. He says that he's been looking into the Euclid Public Library and the Euclid Police Department.

He says that the library is doing a pretty good job, but there's still some work to be done. He also says that the Euclid Police Department is doing a pretty good job, but there's still some work to be done.

So, that's the latest. It's been a pretty busy week for Jerry Freedman. He's been working on some big stories and he's been doing a pretty good job. We'll have to see what he comes up with next.

Comedian Mort Sahl to open CSU's lecture series
Dr. Donald C. Smith, chairman of the Council on Fine Arts, has announced that Mort Sahl, well-known for his spirited and controversial wit, will deliver a lecture at 8 p.m. Monday, April 2, in the University Center Ballroom.

Sahl will speak at 12;30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, where he will answer questions related to his career, the entertainment industry and current events.

Dr. Smith said that Sahl is known for his biting wit and sharp satirical observations on social, political and economic issues. His lectures are known for their unique blend of humor and intelligence, as he often uses his own experiences to highlight the absurdities of modern life.

Tickets are $8 for the general public and $5 for CSU students. Tickets can be purchased at the Student Union Information Desk or by calling 491-6509. They are also available at the door. No credit cards are accepted.

Service
The University Housing Office has announced a new policy for student service requests. Effective immediately, all service requests must be submitted via the University Housing Office's online portal. This change is intended to streamline the process and ensure that requests are processed more efficiently.

Pickler to dedicate new training center
The University of California is pleased to announce the dedication of the Pickler Training Center. The center, named in honor of former University Chancellor Donald E. Pickler, will serve as a hub for training and professional development.

"The dedication of the Pickler Training Center is a significant moment for the University," said Chancellor Pickler. "This center will provide our faculty and staff with the resources they need to continue to excel in their work and serve our students.

The center will offer state-of-the-art facilities, including classrooms, laboratories, and meeting spaces. It will also feature a state-of-the-art library and a comprehensive collection of resources.

"I am grateful to all those who have contributed to the creation of this center," said Pickler. "Their dedication and commitment have made this possible.

¿Handyman¿ services
A new service is now available to students who need help with home repairs or maintenance tasks. The "Handyman" service can be booked through the University Housing Office.

The Handyman service offers a range of services, including painting, plumbing, and general repairs. The service is available to all University Housing residents and is priced at $100 per hour.

"We are excited to offer this service to our students," said the University Housing Office. "We understand that living in a college dorm can be challenging, and we want to make sure that our students have the resources they need to maintain their living spaces.

¿Everything¿ for your party
A new service is now available to students who need help planning a party. The "Everything" service can be booked through the University Housing Office.

The Everything service offers a range of services, including catering, decorations, and entertainment. The service is available to all University Housing residents and is priced at $500 per event.

"We are excited to offer this service to our students," said the University Housing Office. "We understand that planning a party can be stressful, and we want to make sure that our students have the resources they need to throw a great party.

BRENNER PRESENTS LAGUNTUR: the prelude. In honor of the artist's 80th birthday, the university has commissioned a special performance by L. A. Live. Bingo forces rally

Local igniters have been hit hard as New York-year-old package of anti-bingo legislation began to move through the state legislature.

Some groups local, and even statewide, have been working hard to find solutions to the problem, particularly in the last few years.

"We have been working on this for a while," said a representative of the Anti-Bingo Coalition. "We have had some success in the past, but we are still fighting for our rights.

Bingo trends are down as more New Yorkers are choosing to play other games. This has put pressure on the industry to change their ways.

New council committee is created

A newly formed council committee will investigate the possible legalization of bingo. The committee will consist of members from various organizations, including the Anti-Bingo Coalition.

Volunteers needed to make ‘Meals’ perk

Calling all volunteers! Profit and 50/50 raffle will be held in conjunction with the anti-bingo rally. The goal is to raise money for the cause.

The event will take place at the Euclid City Auditorium on October 10th. Volunteers are needed to help with setup and tear down.

Cat courts a ‘catastrophe’

The cat is out of the bag! Local feline has been caught in the act of cat-snooping. The cat has been successfully relocated to a safe area.

Local police say the cat was seen entering the home of a local resident. The owner of the cat believed it to be a neighborhood cat, but it turned out to be a stray.

Grabbing cars is a real drag

Local police have been busy recently with a series of car thefts. The police department has put out a warning to residents to be cautious.

"We have seen a rise in car thefts," said a police officer. "We are working hard to catch the crooks, but we need your help to keep our community safe.

Thefts have been reported in the evenings and on weekends. The police are urging residents to lock their cars and be aware of their surroundings.

Local hospital offers free checkups

Local hospital is offering free checkups to residents. The hospital is hoping to attract more patients and increase business.

"We want to make sure everyone knows we are here," said a hospital spokesperson. "We offer a wide range of services and want to make sure our community is healthy.

The checkups will include blood pressure and cholesterol tests. The hospital will also offer advice on diet and exercise.

Local school district installs new security system

The local school district has installed a new security system to keep students safe. The system includes cameras and motion sensors.

"We want to make sure everyone feels safe," said a school administrator. "We are committed to providing a safe learning environment for our students.

The system will be monitored 24/7 and will alert authorities if there is any suspicious activity.

Local police department adds new officers

The local police department has added new officers to their ranks. The department is hoping to improve its response time.

"We are committed to keeping our community safe," said a police chief. "We have added new officers and are looking forward to making a difference.

The new officers will be assigned to various precincts throughout the city.
